lord up there on a one-way ticket," remarked a Manhattan apartment dweller whose rent was hiked recently.

A weary father had an even more interesting proposal.

"The moon could be an ideal instrument for solving the problem of the generation gap," he observed. "We could move all our children there the day they became teen-agers, and keep them there until they had achieved some adult common sense."

A hen-pecked husband volunteered:

"Don't send just the kids. Send up all domineering wives, too, until they get rid of their nasty dispositions. But please don't quote me."

"Yeah, and don't forget to send up my neighborhood bartender," said a veteran toper. "He hasn't bought a round on the house in five years."

One young lady expressed the firm belief the moon should be blown up at once.

"Soon when a girl goes for a walk with her boy friend under a full moon," she said, "there'll be maybe 100,000 people up there staring down at them through spyglasses. How'll a girl get a guy to propose to her then? Who needs it? Let's blow the moon up now."

Mansfield in Defense of Kennedy

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says he thinks Edward M. Kennedy will pass any attempt for the presidency in 1972, but not because of the auto accident in which a woman riding in the Massachusetts senator's car was killed.

Mansfield had told colleagues for some time before the weekend accident that Kennedy's Senate's No. 2 Democratic leader, would delay any bid for the White House until 1976 or beyond.

Doubts about Kennedy's political future were sounded after his car plunged off a bridge in Chappaquiddick Island, Mass., and the passenger, Mary Jo Kopechne, drowned. Kennedy did not report the accident to police for nine hours, saying he suffered from shock and exhaustion.

Mansfield said he supposes some people will say that Kennedy's political prospects have been damaged by leaving the scene of the accident "but I do not agree."

"Even politicians are human and this could happen to anybody," Mansfield said. "His statement that he dived into the water several times supports his report that he was dazed and shocked."

"He has been going around with a back brace for several years since he was almost killed in an airplane accident. It would have been directly against his doctors' orders to dive into the water. This could have contributed to his exhaustion and shock."

"It is quite understandable that Sen. Kennedy could have been stunned and might not have known what he was doing for several hours after the accident and the physical strain of having dived several times in search of the car."

Mansfield said his belief that Kennedy will not try for the 1972 nomination has been based on his observations of the Massachusetts Senator's personality and the latter's operations as his assistant.

"My conclusion is based on several factors," Mansfield said. "One important one is that he likes the work here in the Senate far more than his brothers did." This was an allusion to the late President John F. Kennedy and the late Robert F. Kennedy.

"A lot of people have been trying to push him into going after the nomination. The Republicans are trying to set him up as a clay pigeon. But he is an old pro in politics at 37. He can afford to wait if he wants to. He has a mind of his own and he will make it up in his own good time."

Other political observers didn't take the same view of the accident's effect on Kennedy's career.

"It's a disaster" for Kennedy's presidential aspirations, said one of the highest political advisers of the AFL-CIO—traditionally strong supporter of Democratic presidential candidates.

Approximately 100 officials of the AFL-CIO's political arm, the Committee On Political Education—COPE—opened a major meeting Piney Point, Md., to discuss state by state congressional races next year, including Kennedy's expected bid for re-election.

Reparations Are Asked by El Salvador

By ARY MOLEON
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — El Salvador said Monday night its troops will not withdraw from Honduras unless Salvadoran residents there are compensated for alleged damages during disorders that preceded El Salvador's invasion of Honduras a week ago.

El Salvador also demanded creation of special tribunals to try persons it accused of murdering Salvadoran citizens in Honduras, and "real and effective" guarantees of proper treatment for the more than 300,000 Salvadorans who have emigrated to less crowded Honduras.

The Salvadoran ultimatum to the Organization of American States threw the inter-American system into a new crisis as the small Central American country defied an OAS order to withdraw its troops by 10 p.m. EST tonight from the Honduran territory that they occupied in an undeclared war.

El Salvador's forces invaded a thousand square miles of the neighboring republic, and more than 2,500 persons were reportedly killed before a cease-fire supposedly took effect at 10 p.m. last Friday.

El Salvador said it invaded Honduras because the Hondurans were persecuting the Salvadorans who had migrated across the border. El Salvador accused Honduras of "genocide," said it was murdering Salvadorans and that more than 15,000 of the immigrants had been forced to flee back to El Salvador.

An OAS official said the organization may be asked to impose sanctions against El Salvador if the withdrawal is not made. But informed sources said all avenues would be exhausted before such an extreme measure was adopted.

Several countries are afraid that condemnation would create wounds that would take a long time to heal.

KENNEDY (from page one)

The girl's father, Joseph, told reporters Kennedy had called him after the accident to express his sorrow.

"I wish it had been me, instead," Kennedy was quoted by Kopechne as saying.

The Kennedy party, which later joined the 25-car cortege to the burial site in St. Vincent's Cemetery in nearby Larksville, flew here today in a private plane from Hyannis, Mass., on Cape Cod.

The 37-year-old senator had been in seclusion since the accident.

Others in the Kennedy party were his two closest friends, Reps. John V. Tunney of California and John C. Culver of Iowa.

Manhunt at Emmet Nabs Car Suspect

Robert A. Drennen, 15, of Arlington, Texas, was caught today near Emmet after an all-night manhunt which began Monday when the boy was flushed from a stolen Texas automobile at Murfreesboro, officers said.

After abandoning the first car, Drennen stole a 1961 Chevrolet at Murfreesboro at 10:15 p.m. Monday and was located at Prescott by city and state officers.

After a high-speed chase to Emmet, Drennen had a blowout and the abandoned car, running into the woods on foot. An all night man hunt ended today when Drennen was seen walking along the railroad north of Emmet by Game and Fish Officer Abbot Morman and Sheriff Wicker. Officers Morman and Wicker pursued Drennen on foot and took the subject into custody. Assisting in the hunt were Jackie Erursy, Trooper Bob Neel of Arkansas State Police and Deputy Sheriff Clyde Covington. Drennen will be released to the Pike County Sheriff's Office.

Mars Flight Plans Draw Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appears unwilling to sign the blank check for a new space commitment to send man beyond the moon—despite momentum fueled by the success and stardust of Apollo 11.

But government programs lauding out payrolls and profits usually develop a rocket-thrust of their own.

The pressure will be there in the congressional debates over national priorities to keep the manned space establishment—symbolized by the Saturn V rockets—a going business with goal such as Mars in 20 or 30 years.

In fact the pressure is already on with plans for manned space flights waning in the early 1970s. Even before the Apollo 11 astronauts got moon dust on their boots, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and House Democratic Whip Hale Boggs were calling for a new goal of Mars.

Around Cape Kennedy, Fla., there is worry about the 20 per cent cut in employment planned for the next 12 months.

And in Boggs' home district of New Orleans, the Boeing Co. is building the last authorized Saturn V launch vehicle.

When it is finished the space agency will have nine Saturns, enough for three moon flights a year for three years.

The departing Johnson Administration did not include in its 1970 budget any funds for further lunar exploration after the first Apollo landing or for continuation of Saturn production.

The Nixon Administration amended that to add funds for the manned program but Congress has yet to approve the money.

The availability of the Saturn rockets, plus the multimillion-dollar installations at Houston and Cape Kennedy, make it unlikely that Congress will not authorize the completion of the moon program into the mid-1970s.

So the debate, and the worry, focuses on the more distant future, which is only around the corner when it comes to planning for space voyages.

To fulfill the moon goal commitment made by the late President John F. Kennedy, the space agency budget once reached about 6 billion a year but is down to $3.7 billion.

Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., also indicated he will push for more money for going beyond the moon in space ventures.

No Foul Play in Death of King Brother

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An autopsy has revealed no evidence of injury or foul play in the death of the Rev. A. D. Williams King, younger brother of slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Police Sgt. B. L. Neikirk of the medical examiner's office said: "There is no evidence of foul play. But we cannot say what was the exact cause of death until all our lab reports are in."

That could take a week, he said.

King, 38, was found dead Monday in the swimming pool of his home. His body was discovered by his son, A. D. Jr.

Gls Lose One Man in an Ambush

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong staged a double ambush close to a village south of Da Nang Monday, killing an American Marine and 10 South Vietnamese, and wounding 4 Americans and 11 South Vietnamese. The enemy attack included a 60-round mortar barrage fired into the village.

Some of the casualties apparently occurred when a civilian bus that rolled unsuspectingly into the line of fire was hit by rocket grenades and then struck a mine.

A team of U.S. Marines and Navy men was hit by small arms fire and grenades fired from ambush as the Americans were clearing mines from a road on the outskirts of the village of Phuoc My, 15 miles south of Da Nang.

The Americans reported they could not call for artillery fire because of the many civilians in the immediate area. Instead, they withdrew under fire to the village, and the Viet Cong fired a mortar barrage into and around the village.

Reinforcements of South Vietnamese militiamen, national police and pacification workers were hastily organized a short distance up the road and moved in to aid the Americans. But this force also ran into an ambush which killed six on the men and wounded six.

About this time, South Vietnamese spokesmen said, the bus drove into the fight.

Says He Saw Glover Kill Evans Girl

PARAGOULD, Ark. (AP) — The state rested its case at 9:15 a.m. today in the first-degree murder trial of Clyde Ray Glover, 36, of Paragould.

The defense then was expected to begin presenting its case.

Monday, the state's key witness testified he saw Glover kill Miss Judy Evans.

Miss Evans, 21, of ear Recto, was found dead in the burned remains of her father's car in a gravel pit near Paragould last March 1.

James Allen Latham, 24, of Paragould, who also is charged in the death of Miss Evans, took the stand Monday as a witness for the prosecution.

"I went along with him knowing he was going to kill her," Latham testified. "I assisted him with some of the details. I bought the gas that burned her."

Latham testified also that he and Glover followed Miss Evans as she left Paragould driving her father's car along Arkansas 25.

Through the use of a flashing red light, they got Miss Evans to halt her car when she turned onto Arkansas 139, Latham said.

Then Glover and Miss Evans talked for a while, Glover then hit her with his fists, and finally he beat her to death with a jack on a dirt road between Arkansas 139 and Arkansas 1, Latham said.

Latham testified that Glover then said, "See there, something like that don't bother me at all."

Under questioning by Glover's attorney, W. B. Howard of Jonesboro, Latham said that the night of the girl's death Glover carried a pistol in his coat or trousers.

"I was afraid if I didn't go along with him he'd kill me," Latham told the court.

After the girl had been beaten to death, Latham said, he went to Glover's automobile body repair shop and got four gallons of gasoline.

He took the gasoline to the gravel pit, where he met Glover, and together they put the girl's body behind the wheel of the car and sent it plunging into the gravel pit, Latham said.

Latham also testified that the two of them poured gasoline into the car and set it afire.

Earlier Monday, Glover's 17-year-old son, Randy, testified that on the night of Feb. 28 Glover and Latham left the Glover house, Glover was wearing a leather jacket, his son said.

About 2 a.m. March 1, several hours after he had left the house, Glover returned to get a working jacket, Randy testified.

Later in the morning, the boy testified, he went to his father's repair shop and heard his father say: "Missed $96 just like that last night. We killed Judy Evans and she didn't have her check cashed."

Miss Evans apparently died a few hours after she had left the Paragould business where she was employed.

LP Gas Bureau Head Fears Firing

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Harry D. Burns, director of the state Liquefied Petroleum Gas Board since October 1959, said today he understood he had been fired.

Burns said the action apparently came during an executive session of the board Monday, but he said he has not been told officially. He said one of the board members told him upon emerging from the closed meeting that the board voted to terminate his employment.

Burns said, however, the members quickly adjourned without telling him anything.

"Our (his and the board's) relationship has been very pleasant," Burns said. "It hit me out of a clear blue sky."

A study by the National Foundation revealed that there are three viruses that cause polio.

Bar Refuses to Rule on Wm. Douglas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversy over Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas' past pay from a Las Vegas-linked foundation is expected to fade out with the American Bar Association's refusal to rule on the issue.

The ABA's ethics committee, in a secret weekend meeting at St. Charles, Ill., said it did not have enough facts to reach a decision on Douglas.

But it stressed again that all judges should avoid any outside financial activities that might interfere with their court duties.

Douglas stepped down in May as the $12,000-a-year president of the Parvin Foundation.

Television and Radio

By JERRY BUCK

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The great potential for space was ably demonstrated by Apollo 11—and so was the great potential for global television.

For one shining moment as Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin walked the lunar surface, the world was bound together, so President Nixon claimed.

The television commentator mentioned only in passing that the greatest audience ever to witness a historic event saw the moonwalk.

It was easy to take television's role for granted amid the drama. You build a camera, load it aboard, and it works. Television is so much a part of our common experience. We watch it, we are enthralled by it, so often we are disappointed by it. Those ghostly images from another planet made it all worthwhile.

When world leaders get around to discussing ways the space program can promote peace and tranquility, perhaps some thought can be given to using the communications satellite network. What a potential it has for global understanding.

Maybe some way can be found to get Russia and Red China to participate. They were the only major nations which did not carry live television of the moon walk. The Soviet Union showed taped sequences of the lunar walk Monday.

Meanwhile, the networks ended their marathon coverage of the lunar phase of the Apollo mission and prepared for live coverage of the splashdown in the Pacific Thursday.

The liftoff from the moon and the rendezvous Monday afternoon went smoothly and there was little for television to do other than present the facts and demonstrate it as best they could with models and animation.

After Sunday night's thrilling pictures it apparently was anticlimactic to many people and audiences were down considerably.

There were many highlights of the long coverage, but here are a few things we will remember:

— Walter Cronkite rubbing his hands in great relief and exclaiming, "Wow!" at the safe landing of the Eagle on the Sea of Tranquility.

— Jules Bergman's informed comments on every step of the critical operation.

— David Brinkley's way of wringing profound meanings out of few and simple words. After all the scientific explanation of Eagle's liftoff from the moon he commented, "They're up and that's the important thing."

— Harry Reasoner's wry way of putting things in perspective when we are most in danger of taking them too seriously. In an essay, he said disenchantment with the moon had already set in and observed that as a symbol it had inspired a "lot of good songs and bad poetry."

Next: A live color transmission from the returning Apollo is scheduled at 7:02-7:17 p.m. EDT Wednesday.

Back in the mundane world of television, NBC Monday night aired the first of six pilots that didn't make it as series for the fall season. Judging from the first, "Pioneer Spirit," the network showed good judgment.

SPACE-HELMETED Britt Rogers drew curious stares in base New York City when she appeared in this outfit. She said she wants her poodle, "Zsa Zsa," to be first dog on the moon.

Moon Only Peaceful Spot, Philosophical Americans Observe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The moon is the only place in the universe where there is both humans and peace," said a man in a Miami bar. Other Americans viewed Apollo 11 as a symbol of peace and progress.

"I think it's an entirely new era in civilization. Probably an ultimate change in the way of life. And every scientific advance is ultimately for good," said Judge Alvin Williams of Mount Vernon, Ill.

President Nixon, speaking by radio-telephone from the White House, told astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., "For one priceless moment in the whole history of man all of the people on this earth are truly one."

The President said the Apollo mission "inspires us to redouble our efforts to bring peace and tranquility to earth."

Leah Noble, 74, of Moonville, Ind., reflected, "It was even more exciting than that day in July 1918 when the first airplane flew over Moonville."

Charles Stuart, 23, of Portland, Ore., said, "When my grandmother was young they were just learning how to fly. Now I wonder what's going to happen by the time I'm her age."

Frederick Durant, an employee of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, found Apollo 11, "a tremendous thrill, sharing with everyone in the world this event which could open the next stage in the evolution of mankind."

Dean Hatrick, of Havre, Mont., stood in the Smithsonian beneath the Spirit of St. Louis, the tiny airplane in which Charles A. Lindbergh flew alone across the Atlantic in 1927, and said, "It's quite a night!"

Not everyone looked at the bright side of the moon venture. Nellie Lawrence of Atlanta said, "Man ain't supposed to be there. I've been to shopping centers and everybody is scared because God didn't intend the moon landing. God didn't intend man to set foot on the heavenly bodies."

Barry P. Peterson of Salt Lake City agreed: "I think it's a waste of the taxpayers' money. I think they could find something better to spend it on... like about a million poor people in the United States. I think when they solve the problems down here they can go looking other places."

The Rev. Joseph S. Crowder of Richmond, Va., took a middle ground: "Man is not able to deny his adventurous side for the sake of social responsibility... Both are part of man's total experience."

Younger Americans had their own special points of view.

"I'd like to go with the astronauts because I like to collect rocks," said Lance Rider, 10, of Virginia Beach, Va.

"Someday I want to take a vacation to the moon—and I will, too," said Connie Pellerito, 10, of Scottsdale, Ariz.

Sarah Greer, 13, of Rochester, N.Y., said, "Man, was I worried. I was afraid they might see somebody up there who wouldn't like the idea of our being up there. After all, we certainly wouldn't want the men from the moon down here."

Gregory Laroque, 15, of Baltimore, watched the lunar landing, then said, "It took them long enough to get there."

Some fabrics are without age or sex in their appeal. Chambrays, for instance, will not only be indispensable in men's wear, but women's, juniors', and boys' and girls' fashions have found it to their liking.

American Airlines to Fly Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP) — The drawn-out Pacific air route battle has concluded with President Nixon awarding American Airlines authority to fly between eastern U.S. points and Hawaii and the South Pacific.

Also, the President approved billionaire Howard Hughes' purchase of the regional airline Air West.

Eastern Air Lines was predicted favorite of industry spokesmen and congressional observers for the Pacific route before Nixon's announcement Monday.

The award to American followed a recommendation last week by the Civil Aeronautics Board. Twice before the Board had recommended the same routes for Continental Airlines. Lyndon Johnson also approved the Continental decision, but Nixon overruled this when he took office.

Johnson's decision came amid claims of favoritism. The law firm of Johnson's Defense Secretary, Clark Clifford, represents Continental.

A CAB examiner had ruled in favor of the Hughes Tool Co., acquiring the assets of Air West, a merger of three smaller lines, which serves eight Western states, Canada and Mexico.

The Air West price is $90 million and the examiner recommended the deal because it would provide "unified direction and purpose that has been lacking in the management since the merger became effective."

American to Attempt to Break National Jinx in All-Star

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 45,000 fans, including President Nixon and a host of baseball greats, will watch the power-laden American League try to break a six-game losing streak against the National League in tonight's 40th All-Star Game.

Eight hitters in the American League starting line-up, including Oakland's Reggie Jackson and Washington's Frank Howard, have hit a total of 179 homers. This compares with 105 homers for the National League's eight best.

But it's not only the long-ball threat that is adding excitement to this year's game at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium.

Pregame festivities included: — A $125,000 banquet Monday night to top off baseball's centennial celebration and to announce selection of an all-time All-Star team.

— A White House reception for the players in tonight's game, members of baseball's Hall of Fame, club owners and sports writers.

In addition to the President and the sellout crowd here, a national television audience will be watching the American League attempt to blast open the pattern of recent years. The National League won 2-1 in both 1966 and 1967, and 1-0 last year.

"We've got power on this club the American League hasn't had in recent years," said Manager Mayo Smith of the Detroit Tigers. "I think after the last three games people would be very happy to see some balls go out and I think some balls will be popped pretty good."

So does National League Manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I don't think the pitchers can overpower the hitters as in the past couple of years," Schoendienst said.

But Schoendienst isn't about to admit that the American League's homer advantage will be enough for them to snap the six-game losing streak that has given the National League the 21-17 edge—there has been one tie—in previous All-Star classics.

The American League power-parade features Jackson, the major league's homer leader with 37, and Howard, the runner-up with 34.

And it has Rico Petrocelli of Boston, 25 homers; Boog Powell of Baltimore, 24; Frank Robinson of Baltimore, 22; Sal Bando of Oakland, 18, and Bill Freehan of Detroit, 13. Only Rod Carew of Minnesota, among the starters, is under double figures, with six.

On the bench are such other homer-hammerers as Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, 29, and Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota, 28. The National League has Willie McCovey of San Francisco, with 30, and Lee May of Cincinnati, a reserve, with 29.

Three other National League players have reached the 20-homer plateau, Hank Aaron of Atlanta, 24; Tony Perez of Cincinnati, 22, and Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs, 22.

McCovey, Aaron and Santo will be in the starting line-up along with Johnny Bench of Cincinnati, 12; Clete Jones of the New York Mets, 10; Felix Millan of Atlanta, five; Don Kessinger of the Cubs, three and Matty Alou of Pittsburgh, one.

The National League will try to counter the AL's home-run edge by starting left-hander Steve Carlton of St. Louis, who has a 12-5 pitching record and a sparkling 1.65 earned run average that is best in the majors.

The American League starting pitcher will be Denny McLain, last year's 31-game winner who has a 14-5 record this season. Smith said his No. 2 pitcher will be chosen from among Sam McDowell of Cleveland, Mel Stottlemyre of the New York Yankees and John "Blue Moon" Odom of Oakland.

Schoendienst is likely to follow Carlton with either Juan Marichal of San Francisco or Bill Singer of Los Angeles.

Game time is 8:15 p.m., EDT.

What Makes Richie Allen That Way?

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Why does Richie Allen act like he does? The question has been asked thousands of times.

How do you answer the question when on the very day Allen decided to repent he turns up two hours late for the peace meeting?

In case you tuned in late, Allen is the super slugger of the Philadelphia Phillies. He hits tape measure home runs. He also misses batting practice, and occasionally doesn't bother to show for a game.

Last June 24, he failed to arrive for a doubleheader against the New York Mets in Shea Stadium. Phillies' manager Bob Skinner suspended the first baseman indefinitely without pay.

Allen's reaction was, "Good, I need a vacation. I'll never play for the Phillies again."

The suspension lasted 26 days and 29 games. If Allen's $80,000 season salary is correct, he lost in excess of $11,000.

The Phillies say he won't get it back, no matter what. He made peace with the club Sunday and is expected to play as soon as he gets into playing shape.

Why does Allen do these things? The Phillies, from owner Bob Carpenter to manager Bob Skinner, say they don't know. The baseball writers can only guess, since Allen refuses interviews. The few times he has spoken—for pay on radio and television—he makes contradictory statements.

Maybe Gene Mauch, former manager of the Phillies who was fired after one of his many disagreements with Allen's behavior, comes closest to the answer. Mauch said recently: "His (Allen's) lifetime ambition seemed to be to be a man, and some people's ideas of being a man are a little different. Richie kind of felt like or kind of acted like that being a man meant one thing and that was supreme independence, complete independence, non conforming to any set of rules at all. And I think it's a little different that the average man's conception of what maturity is."

Allen himself has said he is a ball player but never has learned to be a professional.

What it apparently adds up to is that Allen wants to continue playing the game the same as he did as a youngster on the sandlots. He wants to play when he feels like playing, go horseback riding or to the race track if that is his pleasure on a given day. He doesn't break rules for the sake of breaking rules, but because they don't suit his plans at the moment.

For example, the Phillies had a day off recently and the next day took an evening flight to St. Louis. Allen felt the team should have traveled on the day off. He didn't want to battle the early evening traffic to get to the airport. He didn't go.

"I wasn't intending to make that one," he admits. "No sir. We had a chance to leave here Thursday (the day off). We had an off day to travel that day. I told Skinner that and that's why he decided to fine me $1,000. Well, fine, I was wrong. I didn't go. Right? So they have $1,000. A thousand dollars to stay home is worth two days off."

There are other things. Allen is believed upset because the Phillies won't bring his brother, Ron, up from the club's Reading (Pa.) Eastern League farm club. He thinks players of lesser stature have been promoted. He wants to be traded to another city.

Maybe he put it best in a recent television interview when he said, "I came here black, hard militant and I do crazy things sometimes, but pay for them; but was fair and came to play, came to play."

Why does Allen act like he does? Only Allen knows, or does he? Will he change?

"There is no way I expect anybody to be a new person," Bob Skinner, July 20, 1969.

Pipers Return to Pitt From Minneapolis

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Minnesota Pipers of the American Basketball Association are leaving the midwest and returning home to Pittsburgh where owners hope the gate is green.

Gabe Rubin, owner of the club that took the ABA title in Pittsburgh two years ago, announced the move Monday, confirming reports that had been circulating several months.

"I made a genuine mistake and an unfortunate one for the team," said Rubin of the decision to move to Minneapolis after the gate in Pittsburgh failed to match the team's success.

The Pipers lost $334,532 and drew an average crowd of 3,208 in Pittsburgh, according to a Securities Exchange Commission report. When they went to Minnesota, the report said attendance dropped to 2,263 a game and losses doubled.

Rubin said he was confident Pittsburgh would support the Pipers even though the club will be without star Connie Hawkins, who recently joined the Phoenix Suns of the National Basketball Association.

Hawkins signed a contract with the Suns after settling a $6 million lawsuit against the NBA, charging the league banned him for life for alleged fixing of college basketball games.

Richie Wins West Tennis Title

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I think he was a little nervous," said Cliff Richey of Australia's Allan Stone after the young Texan won the men's singles title of the Western Tennis Championships Monday.

Richey, 22, of San Angelo, looked down at the $5,000 winner's check in his hand. "I knew he would make some errors and I knew if I could keep my errors at a minimum, I would win."

He dropped Stone, ranked No. 7 in his country, in two quick sets, 6-1, 6-2. Richey was the third Western seed and ranked fourth in the United States.

In women's singles finals, Lesley Bowery of Australia won, 6-4, 7-5, 10-all, over Call Chanfreau when the Frenchwoman collapsed from muscle spasms and stomach cramps.

Bob Lutz of Los Angeles, Calif., the United States' No. 5 player, and third-ranked Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., defeated Arthur Ashe and Charles Pasarell, 6-3, 6-4, for the men's doubles title.

Distance of Homer
Doesn't Count, Says
the Famed DiMaggio

By DICK COUCH

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It doesn't matter how far you hit 'em," Joe DiMaggio likes to tell Oakland's young fence busters. "You can only tag four bases."

DiMaggio, the silver-haired Yankee Clipper of bygone days, was still touching all the bases Monday night when he shared the spotlight with the Immortal Babe Ruth at a gala awards banquet honoring the greatest players in professional baseball's first 100 years.

Ruth, the home run king of the Yankees' first Golden Era, was named the Greatest Player Ever in a poll of the nation's baseball writers and broadcasters.

DiMaggio, who has returned to the game as a vice president and coach of the resurgent Athletics, was acclaimed, much to his surprise, the Greatest Living Player and best center fielder in history.

"To play this wonderful game that I enjoyed so much would have been enough," DiMaggio said after his selection as the premier center fielder. "Never thought I'd be honored this way for playing it."

DiMaggio, just before, was one of three living players selected to the all-time team—and the only one active in the past quarter of a century.

Third baseman Pie Traynor and pitcher Lefty Grove, both 69, also accepted their awards before an applauding throng that included several Cabinet members, Supreme Court Justice Byron "Whizzer" White, Terence Cardinal Cooke and former Apollo astronaut Frank Borman.

Ruth, whose widow Claire accepted his award, and Ty Cobb, were the other outfielders on the all-time team, which also included right-handed pitcher Walter Johnson, catcher Mickey Cochrane, first baseman Lou Gehrig, second baseman Rogers Hornsby and shortstop Honus Wagner.

Right-hander Bob Feller and Grove were the pitchers and Bill Dickey the catcher on the honor roll of living players. Stan Musial and George Sisler tied for the first base spot, Charlie Gehringer was named at second, Traynor at third, Joe Cronin at short, and Ted Williams and Willie Mays in the outfield along with DiMaggio.

The late John McGraw was named Greatest Manager Ever and Casey Stengel, Greatest Giving Manager.

National League President Warren Giles received a special award for 30 years of executive service to the game.

Pressed to account for his selection as the Greatest Living Player, the former Yankee suggested that "all-aroundplay" might have been the deciding factor.

"That and being part of a team," he said. "You have to do a lot more than just hit. Defense is what this game is made of. I worked hard, especially in spring training, improving my over-all game."

"It might have looked easy for me, but it surely wasn't."

Dolphin Head Likens Self to Lombardi

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — George Wilson, four years deep into building the Miami Dolphins of the American Football League from the ground up, believes he's just as good a pro football coach as Vince Lombardi.

"I'm tired of all this Lombardi business," said Wilson. "Every one makes him out to be such a great coach. Given the same material, I'll beat him every time."

"I can get a team 'up' on the day of a game," Lombardi snuck retirement from coaching after one year. The man who built a dynasty with the Green Bay Packers accepted a new challenge as head man of the Washington Redskins of the National Football League.

"He's got to do something at Washington," Wilson mused. "He's got the best quarterback in the business (Sonny Jurgensen)."

Wilson has been criticized for running something less than a merciless training camp.

"I bawl guys out as much as Lombardi does, but I don't want everybody to know about it," said the Dolphin coach.

"I don't holler at a fellow in front of his teammates. I don't want to embarrass him. That's just a big show and I'm not going to do it."

Wilson is a veteran of 33 years in pro football and was a Redskins assistant before coming to Miami with the new AFL franchise in 1966. He was named NFL Coach of the Year in 1957 while winning a title at Detroit.

Wilson claims he works players as hard as any coach, but doesn't believe in long drills.

"It's a lot of malarkey that you've got to practice for two hours," he said. "I don't want my ballplayers to be dead by September."

Amateur Girl Tourney Under Way

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Four girls begin competition today for the girls amateur state golf championship at El Dorado.

Miss Martha Jett of Little Rock took medalist honors in qualifying Monday with a three-over-par 79, one stroke better than Miss Pam Spikes of Crossett.

Gary Andrew, pro at the El Dorado Country Club, said he first planned to put only Miss Jett and Miss Spikes in the championship flight since they play consistently better golf than others in the field.

However, he later added Miss Sally Stewart of Fayetteville and Miss Mandy Wilson of Hot Springs to the championship flight. Miss Stewart shot 91 in qualifying and Miss Wilson shot 92.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Days were slipping by and Sal Bando was wondering when, already, are they going to announce that American League All-Star team. He was thinking he had a pretty good chance to be back-up third baseman to Brooks Robinson.

"We were in Chicago," recalled Bando, the Oakland A's third baseman. "and Red Rush, the White Sox radio announcer, came to me on the field and said, 'Congratulations.'"

"I said congratulations for what? He said, 'For making the All-Star team.'"

"A shiver of thrill went through me. But I still thought I was only a back-up man. Then Rush said, 'Yeah, you're the starting third baseman.'"

"I couldn't get it off my mind. My first All-Star game! I remember I was standing out there during the game—after we got eight runs in the fourth inning—and the team was loose and I was getting a little gay. I began day-dreaming."

"I was at bat in the second inning in Washington. I figured I'd bat seventh or eighth. And there were 50,000 or so people in the stands. And the President was there, too—he's supposed to be coming, you know."

"I was dreaming that I hit a home run with one guy on and we won the game 2-0. . . . Some daydream, isn't it."

"But I came back to earth long enough to go three-for-five, including a homer, against the White Sox. I was really high."

Bando, 25, grew up in Warrensville, Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland. One of his earliest All-Star game memories was the 1954 game in Cleveland.

AP Team to Write for Those 18-34

NEW YORK (AP) — An Associated Press team of six young reporters has been formed with the special mission of writing for an estimated 50 million Americans in the 18-34 age group.

The team, five women and a man and called "The New Establishment," was announced in The AP directors' annual report at the news cooperative's 70th annual meeting today.

The report said the team will be "as concerned with how the young adult group spends its money, raises its children, buys its homes as it is with the phenomena of long hair, pot, protest and rock."

Members of the team are Ann Blackman, Ann Hencken, Jurate Kazickas, Lynn Sherr, Dee Wedemeyer and Richard Blystone.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird was to address the AP's annual luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. About 1,500 newspaper, radio and television executives, their wives and guests were expected to attend.

At the meeting, AP General Manager Wes Gallagher was to describe innovations to speed and improve service to AP members.

The AP members were to elect seven directors to their 18-member board and vote on admission of 19 associate member newspapers to regular membership in the organization.

The annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association also opened today and runs through Thursday. Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz addresses the publishers today.

Scheduled to speak at later sessions are William F. Schminck Jr., publisher of the Baltimore Sun and president of the ANIA; Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, president of San Francisco State College; Daniel Patrick Moynihan, special assistant to President Nixon; Dr. Wernher von Braun; and Dr. John S. Foster, director of defense research and engineering for the Defense Department.

On Wednesday, ANPA's World Press Achievement Award is to be presented at a luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The award is presented to a foreign newspaper, published by Per Thomsen.

The AP's annual report also included these highlights:

— The AP's first regional production center, being installed in Atlanta, will be the pilot for others. The center will receive copy by facsimile from outlying bureaus, edit and punch it, and by computer automatically transmit it on designated state wires in the Southeast region.

— In foreign news, the AP is emphasizing people and trends, rather than routine politics.

— AP's staff of specialists has added two urban affairs writers, two more science writers, and full-time writers on golf and auto racing.

— The Washington Special Assignment Team has produced a steady stream of exclusive investigative stories over the past year.

— AP photographer Oliver Nuchan was killed and two other AP photographers, Graham McInerney and Dang Van Phuc, were wounded, adding to the toll of newsmen in Vietnam.

— AP added a fifth newsman in Moscow, making the bureau there the largest of any U.S.-based organization. A new bureau was created in Rawalpindi, Pakistan, and a second bureau in Turkey was established in Ankara. The Havana bureau was closed by order of the Cuban government.

— AP World Services initiated leased satellite circuits linking New York with Buenos Aires, Caracas, Santiago and Rio de Janeiro.

— The AP produced a book on the first moon landing, its sixth annual volume reviewing news of the year, and started a new service for schools called "Visual Concepts," photos from AP files to illustrate social studies and governmental problems.

— Assistant General Manager Daniel De Luce and his wife, after years of trying, were admitted to North Vietnam on an 18-day reporting tour. It produced a widely played series of stories and photos.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Availability, Not Cost, Governs Eye Transplant

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—Can anyone who can afford it receive an eye transplant? Does it have to be a human eye?

A—The only kind of eye transplant that has been widely used is the corneal transplant—not the whole eye. Receiving such a transplant depends more on the availability of a human cornea and the degree of need than on one's ability to pay. In addition to corneas from a human eye bank, a Silastic corneal implant has been developed and used successfully.

Q—I get recurring corneal ulcers. What causes them? Is there any hope of a permanent cure?

A—Corneal ulcers are fairly common in persons whose general health is poor. They are caused by a bacterial infection. The treatment is best left to an ophthalmologist, who will identify the cause and eliminate it.

Q—I have keratoconus. What causes it? Is there any cure for it?

A—Keratoconus, or conical cornea, is a hereditary defect that usually affects both eyes and develops in the early 20s. Untreated, it will lead to blindness but this can be prevented by wearing contact lenses.

Q—My eyes water a lot. What causes this? Is there anything I can use to stop it?

A—Watering of the eyes may be caused by any irritation, such as a foreign body in the eye, an infection, wind, smoke, bright lights, the volatile oil of onions or an allergy. It may also be caused by a blocking of the duct that drains the tears into the back part of your nasal passages. It can be stopped only by finding and removing the cause.

Q—What causes ichthyosis? Is there any cure for it?

A—This is a hereditary condition in which the skin is dry and scaly. It is worse in winter, especially in persons who live in steam-heated homes, and it is aggravated by the excessive use of soaps and detergents. Although it can't be cured, it is helpful to use bath oils and to apply cold cream after bathing and before going to bed—especially on the arms and legs.

Q—Is there any treatment for the type of anemia that is associated with an enlarged spleen?

A—Several types of anemia may be associated with splenic enlargement. One of the most common, splenic anemia or Banti's disease, is best treated by removal of the spleen.

President Talks to Men on Moon

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a super long distance call to tell America's men on the moon "how proud we all are," President Nixon phoned Mamie Eisenhower and former President Lyndon B. Johnson to share his jubilation with them.

"This certainly has to be the most historic telephone call ever made from the White House," Nixon told astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr.

Millions of television viewers saw Sunday night's telephone conversation through a split picture showing both the President and astronauts.

"For one priceless moment in the whole history of man all of the people on this earth are truly one," Nixon said during his brief message congratulating the astronauts.

After talking with the astronauts, Nixon called Mrs. Eisenhower at the nearby White House mansion where she is visiting. He disclosed that the widow of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower had commented earlier that "somebody up there is looking at them too"—referring to the late Gen. Eisenhower.

South looks over dummy and plans his play of the hand in accordance with the code word ARCH.

He analyzes the lead as a fourth best and goes right up with dummy's queen. He has two lines of play to choose from, depending on whether or not East produces the ace.

In either case, he has counted seven top winners and can produce enough extra winners in either clubs or diamonds to give him the nine tricks he needs for his contract. Of course, an optimist will count to 12 winners if both the club and diamond suits can be brought home without the loss of a trick but South is a realist playing three not-trump and wants to be sure of nine tricks.

Should East produce the ace and return the suit, South would hold up his king until the third lead and then go after diamonds. He would want to keep West out of the lead.

However, dummy's queen holds the trick and South's H—How can I make my contract—depends on keeping East out of the lead.

Therefore, South leads dummy's 10 of clubs at trick two. He wants the finesse to succeed but doesn't really care when it loses because there is nothing West can do to hurt him. He can count to nine winners at this point.

If West makes the desperation lead of the ace of hearts, South will have an overtrick; if West leads anything but a heart, South will simply cash out his contract and leave possible overtricks to those who are willing to risk their contracts.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters the President informed Johnson that "I thought we ought to share this great moment."

Johnson told Nixon, Ziegler said, he had been following the Apollo 11 activities all day and appreciated Nixon's call at the historic moment.

Like people around the world, Nixon watched the television screen intently to see man's first step on the moon.

"It's an unbelievable thing—fantastic," he was quoted as saying at the moment Armstrong put foot on the moon.

Ziegler and Astronaut Frank Borman, presidential adviser for the mission, met with newsmen just after midnight to go into more details how Nixon kept in touch with activities on the moon.

"He was amazed at the agility of the astronauts in floating around on the surface," Borman said of the President.

He said he thought the moon landing and the operations on the lunar surface had been so successful because there had been no major surprises.

Cease Fire Broken in C. American

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Honduras charged that El Salvador broke the cease-fire in their undeclared war with the capture Sunday of five more towns or villages.

El Salvador replied with a charge that Honduran troops opened fire with machine guns on President Fidel Sanchez Hernandez of El Salvador while he was inspecting Salvadoran troops inside Tonduras.

The cease-fire, which supposedly went into effect at 10 p.m. Friday, calls for the withdrawal of all Salvadoran troops from Honduras by 10 o'clock tonight. But El Salvador said it would not withdraw until it received "satisfactory" guarantees for the safety of more than 275,000 Salvadorans living in Honduras and their property.

Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa, Nicaraguan chairman of the peace commission of the Organization of American States, said that if El Salvador does not pull its troops back, it will be "considered an aggressor and subject to the sanctions specified in the Rio de Janeiro Charter."

According to Honduran announcements, the Salvadorans have now captured a sizeable piece of western Honduras since they invaded the neighboring country last Monday. The Salvadorans said they went to war because the Hondurans were persecuting the Salvadorans in Honduras and because Honduras was preparing to invade El Salvador.

Tennessee River: Pickwick Lock, Dam, Kentucky Lake

— Contax photos, Alex. H. Washburn, Hope (Ark.) Star

Here is the same lock after the boats had been lowered 53 feet. The gates at the north end of the lock are beginning to open so the boats can start their cruise up Kentucky Lake.

The Star's editor and two boys from Hope headquartered at the Pickwick Lock and Dam area, 117 miles east of Memphis, July 6-11 on a 250-mile tour of the Tennessee River. There were nine in the party, in two boats. Today's pictures tell their story.

With Washburn were Mike Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Dan Jones; and Stanley James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim James.

From Jackson, Miss., were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Chapman, Jr., daughter Paula, and a friend, Linda Dupree. From Memphis were Mr. and Mrs. C.J. Watkins. This was the cruising party; however, it was joined on the last night by Rev. and Mrs. Thomas E. Kernan and their children, Mike and Catherine. The Rev. Mr. Kernan, son-in-law of the Watkins, is a Presbyterian minister who was in process of transferring from Kenova, W. Va., to Louisville.

The first venture of the two boats—the editor's 16-foot runabout and the Chapman-Watkins' 22-foot cruiser—was through Pickwick Lock downstream into Kentucky Lake, heading north for Paducah, Ky., and the confluence of the Tennessee and Ohio Rivers.

Above is a picture of the upstream side of Pickwick Lock, with the 22-foot cruiser at the right. Here the lock is full. After the boats entered the gates were closed and the water lowered to the level of Kentucky Lake—a drop of 53 feet.

One of the innumerable towboats and strings of barges you are always meeting on the multi-dammed and fully-navigable Tennessee River. We are in Kentucky Lake, having reached Clifton, Tenn., the only habitation in the 64-mile stretch from Pickwick Dam northward up Kentucky Lake. After camping at Clifton for the night, we decided the next morning, Tuesday, July 8, to give up the Kentucky Lake exploration and return to the Pickwick Lock and Dam area. The southern end of Kentucky Lake is an empty wilderness, short of people, camping grounds, and fueling stations. Besides, the 22-foot cruiser, loaded down with camping equipment and supplies, posed a fuel problem. Skipper Watkins estimating his overloaded 75 hp engine was making about 2 miles per gallon.

This limestone wall, running for miles along the eastern shore, gives you an idea of the wild and hostile landscape at the southern end of Kentucky Lake.

Kentucky's civilization is centered on the northern end of the lake, in the area just south of Paducah—but the southern end is barren of people.

Returning to Pickwick we camped on an island not far from the dam. The picture, taken from the island, shows the giant launching ramp for small boats in the Pickwick area.

Another view of our island, looking toward the lock and dam, with the dressing tent at the top of the hill.

Of the five nights, we spent two at the Pickwick Motel, camping out the other three.

Guard Takes Over in Columbus

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — National Guard troops rolled into Ohio's capital city today after one person died in racial disturbances involving masked rioters armed with tear gas canisters.

Police reported 130 arrests and 25 injuries. The nighttime disorder in which a Columbus man died was the city's first major racial outbreak. Police said it apparently was triggered by the fatal shooting of a Negro man Monday afternoon in a dispute involving a cleaning shop operator.

"The situation is under control but there are continuing isolated incidents," Adjutant Gen. Sylvester Del Corso reported after the troops moved into the area early today.

Gov. James A. Rhodes called up 1,300 Guardsmen after city officials reported that the disturbances had spread over a 10-square-mile area, centering in a 3-square-mile area.

Two-hundred troops were sent into the trouble area. The remaining 1,100 were stationed at various armories and assembling points in the city.

Police Maj. Dwight Joseph said the rioters, some wearing gas masks and armed with tear gas canisters, fired on and threw bricks at firemen sent to numerous fires set in business places.

Joseph said sporadic sniper fire continued even after relative calm had been restored in the area.

"We'll return fire with fire... we will shoot felons on sight," he said.

Police set up roadblocks to divert traffic from the trouble spots.

Police said that during the height of the rioting, George Stultz, 47, Columbus, was killed by a bullet apparently fired by a sniper. Lt. Richard Born said Stultz, white, was hit as he held a flare to assist police.

Born said there was considerable firebombing and looting as crowds moved through the area, which later was placed under a curfew until 6:30 a.m.

Police reported arresting an armed man who had broken into a bank.

One fire was in a dry cleaning shop where Roy Beasley, 27, a Negro, was shot to death Monday.

Police arrested the white shop manager, Dave E. Shesnut, 69, and charged him with second-degree murder. They said the shooting stemmed from a neighborhood dispute.

One Thing Sure About Moon: Man Won't Let It Alone, Says Boyle

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Sooner or later, the fate of the moon appears sealed. Already a satellite of earth, in time it must come under the dominion of earth's most strident creature — man.

But to what use can man put the moon after he has conquered it? It is unlikely that man will simply leave it alone, for it is not in his nature to leave things alone. He has a history of either improving them, as he defines improvement, or wrecking them.

Because of its barren nature, extremes of heat and cold, and lack of water and atmosphere, the moon doesn't appear off-hand to be a likely site to create another Garden of Eden. It has no beach to rival the Riviera, and there are no immediate prospects of it growing a corn crop to match that of Iowa.

But while science may be puzzled as to what productive use the moon can be put to, many Americans, unbothered by scientific data, see as practically limitless the possibilities of our nearest celestial neighbor.

Some man-in-the-street interviews brought forth these fanciful suggestions:

"Pave the moon and turn it into a universal free parking lot. In another 50 years we'll need it."

Bugs in Moon Rock? Could Be Good Ones, Scientist Reckons

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The rocks Apollo 11 is flying back to earth might smuggle in germs born on the moon. But there is the barest possibility that this would not necessarily be bad news.

They could well come as helpful friends, not foes. For humans couldn't survive without many friendly microbes they already have.

Moon bugs loosed upon earth might just might chew up the trash, beer cans, rusted autos, the garbage, plastics and paper with which man is littering and glutting his own dwindling living space.

Friendly moon bugs might clear the waters of his lakes and streams, polluted by man's stream of chemical wastes.

The chances that the moon has any kind of microbes entirely unknown on earth are extremely remote, most scientists believe.

But the bare possibility that any moon bugs, if they do exist, might trigger epidemics among people, farm crops, fish, birds, animals or trees has prompted elaborate precautions to quarantine the rocks, and the three astronauts, from now until such danger can be reasonably dismissed. Life on earth could be innocent prey to organisms it had never before encountered.

There's perhaps the same remote possibility the moon bugs could be beneficial. Look to some of what earth microbes do to maintain life here.

Germs with a liking to consume fallen leaves and carrion, returning their chemical contents back into the cycle of life.

Babies could not digest their milk without the aid of special microbes. Bacteria in the human intestine manufacture needed B vitamins.

So there might be antilitter germs on the moon. Are native germs starting to consume the TV camera, the boots, gloves and other space-age articles abandoned on the moon?

Kennedy to Go to Girl's Funeral

By JAMES V. LAMB
Associated Press Writer
PLYMOUTH, Pa. (AP) — A grim and haggard Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, his neck encased in a light nylon brace, offered prayers today at the funeral of Mary Jo Kopechne, the pretty blonde secretary who died when a car driven by Kennedy plunged off a bridge.

Kennedy, his wife, Joan, and Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy, widow of the late senator, and other members of their party occupied a pew at the left front of the altar in St. Vincent's Roman Catholic Church.

Hundreds of persons, many of them there for a glimpse of the Kennedy's filled the red brick church to overflow. Hundreds of others stood outside.

Most of those inside sat with heads bowed as the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Burchill, celebrant of the requiem mass, asked that the soul of Miss Kopechne "be given eternal rest."

The 28-year-old Miss Kopechne drowned Saturday in the accident on an island off Martha's Vineyard on the Massachusetts coast.

She was born near here, but moved to Berkeley Heights, N.J. with her parents 25 years ago.

Amendment to Spark ABM Showdown

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators shifted their attention from moon rockets back to defense missiles today as opponents of the Safeguard system prepared to mount their major effort to block the administration program.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., had prepared an outline of the amendment introduced by himself and Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., which would limit Safeguard to research and prohibit either deployment or site acquisition.

This amendment is expected to provide the showdown when it is voted on, probably next week.

Foes of the antiballistic missile—ABM—still see the battle as extremely close at the start of the third week of Senate debate on the issue. They say a handful of senators hold the key to the outcome.

Anti-Safeguard strategists are rejecting claims by ABM proponents that last week's secret session turned the tide in the administration's favor. They contend the same senators who were undecided before the secret Senate meeting still haven't made up their minds.

They count 49 or 50 senators in their anti-ABM camp, just below the 51 needed to prevail in the event all 100 senators vote. A 50-50 vote would defeat any amendment.

The latest Associated Press survey indicated 49 senators for the Safeguard system, and 49 against, with Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., holding out for his own compromise amendment and Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., declining to state a position.

Arkansas Woman Stabbed

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A former Bearden, Ark., resident, Marnette Sullivan, 21, was stabbed Monday as she slept in her motel room here. Miss Sullivan was in Chattanooga to compete in a beauty pageant.

The 5-foot-4 brunette suffered stab wounds in the neck and chest. She was released from Erlanger Hospital late Monday afternoon and flew back to her home in Dallas, Tex.

Miss Sullivan said she was in a deep sleep when the assailant struck.

"The first thing I felt was pain, and I turned and saw this man," she said. "He stabbed me in the throat and I started screaming."

The man has not been found. Officers said a nightwatchman reported he saw a man fleeing and he and one of the contest officials pursued him to the roof of the building where they lost him.

The Door to Space Voyage Has Opened

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — For eight years the world has been conditioned to the idea that one day man would land on the moon. Now it has happened. The world is excited. But does it really understand what has happened?

By landing on the moon, American astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. have carried man's eternal questing for the unknown to another celestial body. They have opened the limitless frontier of space. That door will never close.

Men cheer the explorers of Apollo 11, but they do not fully grasp the mechanical complexities and the technological and human skills that got them to the moon.

Those who do understand are amazed at the technological progress made in the last decade because of the space program.

When President John F. Kennedy, stung by Russian space exploits, declared the United States in the moon race in 1961, virtually none of the equipment to do the job existed.

The largest, most imaginative government-industry-university team ever assembled for a single project went to work and the miracles began. In eight years, the team, reaching a peak of 420,000 people, put together a remarkable and powerful set of machines that carried the first men to the moon on Sunday, July 20, 1969.

At the start, test rockets exploded, spaceships failed.

But then John H. Glenn Jr. put America in the orbital race in 1962. The two-man Gemini program sent the United States soaring past the Soviet Union in space in 1966.

Then, suddenly, death. The three Apollo 1 astronauts died in a flash fire that swept through their space cabin during a launch pad test at Cape Kennedy in 1967.

The goal seemed beyond reach.

But the tragedy opened the eyes of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Management, design and inspection techniques were overhauled.

More than a year was lost. But the results are shown by the record. Since resuming manned launchings last October with Apollo 7, America had conducted four perfect missions, stepping stones to the grand adventure of Apollo 11.

It was done with things that didn't exist a dozen years ago—sophisticated computers and guidance systems, micro-miniature electronics and new metal alloys. Development of these devices has made America the world's technological leader.

Defense Says Hearing Is 'Farce'

By HARRY KING
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sam Robinson of Little Rock, attorney for state Game and Fish Commission member Raymond Farris of Biscoe, contended today that the ouster hearing for Farris is a "farce."

The hearings for Farris and Commissioner Newt Halley of Rogers began last week. Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, who has charged Farris with 10 counts of misconduct in office, initiated the hearings. The hearing for Halley ended Thursday.

Testimony will be reviewed by Rockefeller, who then will announce whether in his opinion the commissioners are guilty of the charges.

Robinson said the Constitution prohibited Rockefeller from participating in the matter since "any judge is disqualified from participating in a matter when he is interested."

"It would be a farce and nothing else for the governor to pass judgment on this matter," Robinson said. "I don't think it amounts to due process of law."

He also charged that Rockefeller was financing the hearings.

American Moon Men Are Heading Home for Old Mother Earth

Russia Tells People Truth About Flight

By JOHN WEYLAND
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet people today found out that their Luna 15 unmanned spaceship failed at a space triumph while the U.S. Apollo 11 was returning successfully to earth.

Newspapers carried the Luna announcement inconspicuously. A success would have been splashed on front pages.

While news media tried to minimize the failure, the public undoubtedly was clearly aware of it and sharply disappointed. The Kremlin for years conditioned the country to attach great importance to space achievements and regard them as evidence of national progress.

The conditioning was done during the heady days when the Soviet Union was scoring one space triumph after another, while the United States sought to get its program going. Efforts were made later to change public thinking, after the Soviet lead waned, but these apparently never fully succeeded.

The government tried to shift attention away from manned flights, where it suffered most by comparison, to unmanned flights.

The last major Soviet manned flight success was Alexei Leonov's first space walk in March 1965. There followed a two-year period of inactivity and then disaster with the crash of Soyuz 1 that killed cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov.

The only two manned Soviet flights since 1965 have been unspectacular.

Oil Depletion Faces Fight in Senate

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is likely to follow its Ways and Means Committee recommendation to cut the oil depletion allowance, congressional sources said today. But the proposal may encounter more resistance in the Senate.

Some talked of an eventual compromise that would reduce the allowance from the current 27 1/2 per cent to 22 1/2 — instead of 20 as the committee recommended.

The committee adopted the 20 per cent recommendation Monday 18-7 in its first formal vote during work on a broad tax reform bill. Afterwards a spokesman said the House should have a chance to vote on tax changes before the Aug. 13 recess.

Autos Collide on West Third St.

Charles Posey of Ft. Worth, Tex., was involved in an accident here Monday at 4:15 p.m. in which his vehicle was hit at the rear by Gracie Walters of Indiana.

The collision occurred on W. 3rd when Posey stopped to make a turn. No charges were filed. City officers Long and Sinyard investigated.

U.S.-Russian Relations May Improve

By ANDREW P. TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer
JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — Astronaut Sir Bernard Lovell said today the Apollo 11 and Luna 15 moon maneuvers demonstrate American superiority and sharply increased the chances of U.S.-Soviet cooperation in space.

"This is the first time the United States has been demonstrably superior in a vital part of the space program," Lovell said. "American approaches for collaboration may be received with sympathy in the Soviet Union as they can no longer regard themselves as masters."

Lovell tracked the unmanned Soviet Luna 15 on a radio telescope during its nine-day flight to an apparent crash landing on the moon. He said Apollo 11 has shown that "the American nation can do almost anything if it wishes to do it."

An "associate" of Lovell said Luna 15 showed a new ability to change lunar orbit but that the Russians probably intended that it should do something more.

Lovell suggested that the Soviet Union, however, is not as far behind in space as Apollo 11 success and Luna 15's apparently unsuccessful hard landing would make it appear.

Lovell told reporters it seemed clear that the Russian space effort was concentrated on recovering lunar samples by means of a remote-controlled unmanned vehicle. He said it appeared possible that the Russians could achieve that "within a matter of months." But he said the Soviet Union was "quite a long way" behind in putting men on the moon.

Lovell said Luna 15's mission was clearly indicated by its moon landing Monday and "we think it dead."

He refused to say that the Soviet probe had ended in failure, but commented: "It does not make sense to take the thing out of orbit when it is working perfectly and destroy it on the moon."

Lovell raised the possibility that Luna 15 might have been part of a space rendezvous exercise involving two launchings, one of which did not go off successfully.

The President of the United States will be on their recovery carrier in the Pacific, the USS Hornet, to greet them—but it will be through the trailer's window.

Weak communications kept whatever joy they expressed during their reunion Monday from reaching the ground. There was a little problem in the docking—never explained, Collins was heard to say "all hell broke loose."

Second Moon Launch Due in November

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Man's second moon landing—Apollo 12—probably will be launched in November with the landing made in the western hemisphere of the moon.

Lt. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, director of the Apollo program, said Monday the final site selection for the second manned lunar landing has not been completed, but that a point in the western mars, or lunar sea, will be picked.

Apollo Crew Brushing Dust From Clothes

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Brushing moon dust from their clothes, the crew of Apollo 11 turned home to earth today, their scientific treasures intact, their place in history secure.

They were together again: Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., the first humans to tread and feel the soil of the moon; and Michael Collins, who girdled that barren globe in the mother ship, awaiting their return.

From liftoff on the moon, through linkup with Collins, through the maneuver that started them home, the astronauts were unrestrained in their joy that everything worked.

"The Eagle is back in orbit, having left Tranquility Base and leaving behind a replica from our Apollo 11 patch with an olive branch," said Armstrong after their lunar lander roared off the surface of the moon.

And 3 1/2 hours later, as the two ships again became one, mission control asked Collins how it felt to have company.

"Damned good, I'll tell you," he replied.

And finally, Collins announced they were off for home with a shout: "Open up the LRL doors, Charlie," referring to the lunar receiving laboratory that would be their home on earth for at least 16 days while doctors make sure they brought back no moon bugs.

"Roger," said Charles Duke at mission control. "We got you coming home."

Apollo 11 was behind the moon for the 31st and last time and out of touch with earth at 12:57 a.m. EDT today when the engine fired for 2 1/2 minutes. The push speeded the ship to 5,700 miles an hour, breaking it loose from the moon's pull and heading it toward the brilliant, cloud-swaddled ball of earth 237,489 miles and two days, four hours away.

As they broke away, their speed dropped rapidly due to the continued influence of the moon. Not until later today, when they passed through that invisible line where earth's attraction overcomes that of the moon, would they begin to go faster again.

Awaiting them at splashdown in the Pacific at 12:51 p.m. EDT Thursday is the strangest welcome a nation has ever accorded its heroes. They'll be sprayed with disinfectant, sheathed in an air-tight garment with a gas mask to breathe through, hustled into a leak-proof trailer and flown in it to a quarantine laboratory at the Manned Space Center.

The President of the United States will be on their recovery carrier in the Pacific, the USS Hornet, to greet them—but it will be through the trailer's window.

Weak communications kept whatever joy they expressed during their reunion Monday from reaching the ground. There was a little problem in the docking—never explained, Collins was heard to say "all hell broke loose."

100-Degree Weather to Continue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Little significant change in the weather is expected Wednesday, the U.S. Weather Bureau said today.

Skies should be partly cloudy and temperatures should reach 100 degrees in the southwest and 90s elsewhere.

Temperatures reached 100 Monday afternoon for the first time since July 16. The high was 101 at Texarkana.

A flat ridge of high pressure extends along the Gulf coast to the south. This ridge is expected to hold firm, possibly building slightly during the next two days. This will tend to hold the frontal system north of the state and result in a slight increase in temperature with a slight decrease in shower activity.

Unable to Get Child From Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Joanne Washington of Philadelphia says she has abandoned her attempt to take her small daughter back to the United States but that her ex-husband, an airline hijacker, "is going to bring her later when he gets things straightened out."

Mrs. Washington, 25, came to Cuba July 7 in the hope that her husband Tom, a 27-year-old Philadelphia chemist, would return 3-year-old Jennifer to her.

She said Monday she will leave Havana Friday without the child because she has run out of money and because diplomats have told her that she cannot take her daughter from her ex-husband without his consent.

She says a U.S. court has awarded her custody of the child.

Washington took Jennifer during a pre-Christmas visit to Mrs. Washington's house. He brought her to Havana on a Philadelphia-to-Miami jet that he hijacked Dec. 19.
